The refinement that an educated and virtuous woman. can instill hot the home life, and the power that she exerts in uplifting the world were the theme of the baccalaureate sermon, preached by Very Rev. Charles F. Aikem, professor of apologetics at the college.

Educated Woman's Sphere.

In congratulating the graduating clas ipon its scholarship he impressed upon the members their duty to show by their con duct that education, far from the making woman less womanly, makes her realiz the more that her duty in life is to be an aspiration to all other women who have not had the educational advantage she and tenderness characteristic of woman Her education, he pointed out, must train her to an appreciation of these virtues and the ways in which they may be deoped for the uplift of the world.
